Abstracts

In 2023 the main influence on home care sales was the full resumption of society in the wake of the pandemic and less time spent at home. In general, categories related to disinfection and surface care posted the steepest declines as the pandemic receded and vaccines were rolled out. Inflation was also an important factor, with this rate dropping in 2023 after recording a record high in 2022. This helped to boost consumer spending power, though poverty remains high.
