Abstracts

There was a growing demand for home insecticides in Kenya in 2023. This was especially visible amongst the burgeoning urban population, supported by a rise in the disposable incomes of the country's growing middle-class consumer base. With improving lifestyles, these consumers were more inclined to look for safer and more modern insecticide methods to use in their homes, thereby shifting away from traditional methods, such as the use of mosquito nets and mosquito coils. Despite the harsh economi...
