Abstracts

Over the review period, home insecticides registered slight positive retail volume growth, as stronger disinfectant products were used since spring 2020, when the pandemic emerged, removing more environments suitable for insect larvae, thereby reducing insect survival rates. Home insecticides registered further positive growth in 2023, in retail value and volume terms. This was mostly due to the humid spring and summer seasons during 2023, with the local climate in a typical subtropical country...
