Abstracts

After contending with the pandemic, Western Europe emerged into a period of high inflation, with rates hitting levels not seen for decades in many of the region's countries. This, in turn, set off a cost-of-living crisis for many consumers, dampening demand in the home and garden market in the final years of the review period. The difficult economic backdrop, combined with ongoing geopolitical uncertainty, are also clouding the outlook for the start of the forecast period.

Euromonitor International's Home and Garden in Western Europe global briefing offers the big picture view of the size and shape of the Home and Garden market. The report delivers strategic insight into some of the key areas of the market, including emerging regions, countries and categories, as well as pressing industry issues and white spaces. It identifies opportunities, analyses leading companies and brands, and offers analysis of major factors influencing the market. Forecasts illustrate how the market is set to change and criteria for success
