Abstracts

Home insecticides grew slightly in value terms in 2019, continuing the positive trend that has been going on for a number of years. Despite this, during the forecast period this growth is expected to turn negative. This is mainly because of an expected slowdown in performance from big categories such as spray/aerosol insecticides and also declines in electric insecticides and insecticide coils.

Euromonitor International's Home Insecticides in Sweden market report offers a comprehensive guide to the size and shape of the market at a national level.
