Abstracts

After two years of strong retail volume growth in 2020 and 2021 in a pandemic-fuelled surge, sales of televisions declined in 2022, and this is set to continue in 2023, as consumer demand was brought forward and demand is now waning as replacements are not yet necessary. In addition, geopolitical and economic uncertainties, such as the war in Ukraine, and surging raw materials prices and production costs, added to consumers' concerns about spending, which negatively impacted sales of televisions...
