Abstracts

Hot drinks registered double-digit current value growth, though constant value growth was very low. The war in Ukraine led to an energy crisis, which in return led to high inflation. However, the full impact of the global oil price rises and other commodity price rises on domestic prices were cushioned by government subsidies, though this came at a fiscal cost. That being said, volume sales were up, mainly bolstered by population growth, with growth higher through retail channels than foodservic...
