Abstracts

Rising inflation and the heightened cost of living in Romania in 2023, negatively impacted retail volume sales of basic food and drinks, including hot drinks. Coffee sales were particularly challenged, with negative retail volume sales, as the unit price of coffee grew, further impacted by the rise in prices of the raw bean. Due to the size of the coffee landscape, this result led to an overall retail volume decline for hot drinks, while retail value remained positive, driven by higher prices.
