Abstracts

Demand for instant tea is being dampened as Taiwanese consumers shift towards a healthier mindset in light of the COVID-19 crisis. It is a trend for consumers to have their drinks without sugar in order to stay healthy. Indeed, sugar has become a major focus of the health and wellness trend as it has become strongly associated with a range of health problems and, in particular, the rise in obesity. Thus, instant tea drinkers have shifted from drinking added sugar instant teas to full-leaf teas.
