Abstracts

Finland was one of the countries that imposed few restrictions on lodging during the COVID-19 pandemic. For example, outlets were not forced to close nor were they restricted to only hosting certain types of guests. However, there were COVID-19-related restrictions on foodservice and other activities, as such as events in lodging outlets. Despite a more relaxed lodging environment than in many other countries, the category suffered heavily, and was maintained mostly by domestic travel and tourists...
