Abstracts

Luxury leather goods saw a record current value decline in 2020, as domestic and international travel restrictions, lockdowns, and other efforts to curtail the spread of COVID-19, including significant limitations on in-person events, as well as social distancing and hygiene regulations in stores, significantly diminished demand for luxury leather goods. The category returned to growth in 2021, as restrictions eased, and consumer behaviour began to normalise. However, despite government stimulus...
