Abstracts

During the pandemic, the revenue of mass beauty and personal care brands was driven primarily by stockpiling by consumers. As people were uncertain about the future and the availability of products, they began to stock up on essential items, including beauty and personal care products. E-commerce played a major role in facilitating stockpiling, as consumers were able to easily purchase products online and have them delivered to their homes. As a result, sales of mass beauty and personal care bra...
