Abstracts

Growth in meals and soups spiked in 2020, when consumers were looking for easy meal solutions during the long periods they were spending at home due to the pandemic. Further healthy growth rates were also seen in 2021 and 2022, even as many consumers in the region were returning to the office. For some, the return to the office has been only partial, given the increase in hybrid working, while China was seeing ongoing lockdowns in the face of spiking new case numbers due to the Omicron variant.

Euromonitor International's Meals and Soups in Asia Pacific global briefing provides a comprehensive overview of the Cooking Ingredients and Meals market, providing insight on sales and market potential, retail distribution and company and brand shares. Analysis identifies emerging geographies alongside growth opportunities in the most developed, highest value countries. It also offers strategic analysis of the key trends shaping the industry and consumer demand, such as health and wellness, sustainability, the evolution of eating occasions, in addition to ongoing considerations of convenience and value-for-money in the post-pandemic world. Insight into how these trends are shaping demand informs forecasts to 2026, clearly indicating how the market is expected to change.
