Abstracts

Meals and soups total packaging volumes maintained solid growth in 2022, although performances varied across categories and pack types. For instance, in 2022, the pack type share of thin wall plastic containers increased from an already significant base in meals and soups packaging. This is because thin wall plastic containers are often more cost-effective to produce compared with other packaging materials, such as glass or thick-walled plastics. This cost advantage can make them an attractive o...
