Abstracts

During the last two years, products and services through mobile-based apps have strongly increased presence. More and more, domestic players are starting to focus on mobile e-commerce. One of the advances that electronic commerce, and mobile internet retailing, has had in the country is that it has reduced the delivery time of the items that are purchased. In the same way, it has increased the frequency with which people buy the products. What consumers are most interested in are technological i...
