Abstracts

Although Germany's birth rate marginally declined in 2023 after an increase in 2021, demand for nappies/diapers/pants continued to rise. However, value growth was considerably higher. 2022's record-high inflation that led to higher average prices across all categories due to increased costs of raw materials and disruptions along the supply chain continued to be felt by consumers into 2023, whose confidence and purchasing power decreased considerably. The cost of production remained high in 2023.
