Abstracts

The relationship between consumers and food is changing. Less a commodity, especially when dining out, food has become a lifestyle choice for more consumers, and a growing awareness of options is having an impact. This briefing will explore how consumers are choosing restaurants that share their values, how consumers are seeking out dining occasions that are genuine, relaxed and informal, and how novel Japanese concepts are uniquely suited to these trends and have grown globally as a result.

Euromonitor International's New Concepts in Consumer Foodservice: Part 2 – A Changing Relationship to Food global briefing offers an insight into to the size and shape of the Consumer Foodservice market, highlights buzz topics, emerging geographies, categories and trends as well as pressing industry issues and white spaces. It identifies the leading operators and brands, offers strategic analysis of key factors influencing the operating environment - be they economic/lifestyle influences, new foodservice concepts, outlet locations, menu innovation or format development. The entire industry is considered, including both chained and independent operators. Forecasts illustrate how the market is set to change and what is the criteria for success.

Product coverage: Consumer Foodservice by Location, Consumer Foodservice by Type.

Data coverage: market sizes (historic and forecasts), company shares, brand shares and distribution data.
