Abstracts

As part of the Consumer Foodservice 2017 edition research, analysts in 54 countries submitted the most innovative new concepts in their market. It became clear that the needs, priorities and preferences of consumers are more complex than ever, as consumer lifestyles have adjusted to more modern, often more urban living arrangements. This first of two briefings will focus on the new foodservice formats looking to redefine the in-store experience to be more relevant to consumers in their markets.

Euromonitor International's New Concepts in Consumer Foodservice: Part I - Redefining the In-Store Experience global briefing offers an insight into to the size and shape of the Consumer Foodservice market, highlights buzz topics, emerging geographies, categories and trends as well as pressing industry issues and white spaces. It identifies the leading operators and brands, offers strategic analysis of key factors influencing the operating environment - be they economic/lifestyle influences, new foodservice concepts, outlet locations, menu innovation or format development. The entire industry is considered, including both chained and independent operators. Forecasts illustrate how the market is set to change and what is the criteria for success.
