Abstracts

After registering a strong negative impact in 2020, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, personal accessories is set to see a positive performance in current value terms for a second consecutive year in 2022, with volume sales also expected to return to growth. Much of the value growth has been a consequence of increases in prices, because of rising production costs. In addition, the success of mass vaccination led to a milder phase of the pandemic. This has allowed for the return of socialisation, mot...
