Abstracts

Trading conditions for pet care in the Czech Republic have remained relatively challenging in 2023. While inflationary pressures related to the global recovery from COVID-19 and Russia's invasion of Ukraine have eased somewhat, they have continued to drive up unit prices and depress purchasing power among consumers. Together with the return to pre-pandemic routines, the rising cost of living has made people less inclined to acquire new pets, and resulted in an increase in the numbers of dogs and...
