Abstracts

With the increased popularity of plant-based products, many people are making these products at home. This trend was mostly visible during the COVID-19 pandemic, when people spent more time in the household; however, the worsening economic situation of 2022 boosted the trend. The ingredients to make some plant-based milks are cheaper than the product, leading customers to make their own at home. Some retail representatives have commented that even though the trend of making plant-based alternati...
