Abstracts

Plant-based dairy has been less affected by inflation because it does not depend on raw milk prices, which skyrocketed in 2022. Furthermore, the prices of other plant-based ingredients have remained within reasonable margins. Additionally, producers have been able to maintain prices due to their relatively high profit margins. Even though plant-based dairy products are generally more expensive than their standard dairy counterparts, inflation has had a positive effect to some extent. This is bec...
