Abstracts

Plant-based dairy, following two years of strong growth, saw its packaging unit volumes decline slightly in 2022. However, its sales were still well above pre-pandemic levels in 2022, while its year-on-year performance was also better than that of the overall packaged food market as well as the dairy category. Plant-based dairy is also expected to continue outperforming packaged food and dairy over the forecast period. Plant-based dairy continues to benefit from the sustainability trend, with mo...
