Abstracts

The Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic is the harshest global crisis since World War II, and will have a long-lasting impact on economies around the world. Countries are entering historic recessions, public debt will skyrocket and labour markets will struggle for years. Economies are reopening but many risks remain. Infection rates might rise, with new pandemic waves, vaccine development might be slow, or economic policy response might not reach businesses and individuals in need.

Aimed squarely at strategists and planners, they draw on Euromonitor International's vast information resources to give top line insight across markets and within consumer segments.
