Abstracts

In recent years, a significant increase in legume consumption has been observed in Italy. This trend is largely attributed to increased awareness of the health benefits associated with consuming these types of foods, as well as a growing interest in a healthier and more balanced diet. Considered a superfood by many, legumes are low in fat and high in antioxidants, fibre, B vitamins and minerals such as iron, calcium and potassium. They are also rich in complex carbohydrates that provide sustaine...
