Abstracts

All sub-categories in processed meat and seafood are seeing healthy growth in 2020, despite challenges created by COVID-19, with slightly slower growth more akin to historic norms expected over the forecast period. Challenges noted include problems within the local production of poultry, caused by the lower consumer spending power seen due to job losses and various financial impacts from COVID-19. This has resulted in many local producers decreasing their manufacturing volumes to 25%-30% of capa...
