Abstracts

The COVID-19 pandemic had a varied impact on processed meat and seafood packaging in 2020 as consumers around India were faced with the fear of catching the virus and conflicting information on how to best avoid contamination. On the one hand, processed meat and seafood packaging was negatively affected by the false rumours that spread across the country linking the consumption of chicken products with COVID-19 infection. This saw many consumers decide to omit meat from their meals, focusing mor...
