Abstracts

The packaging unit volumes of metal food cans used in shelf stable meat saw a spike in demand in 2020, which was maintained in 2021. This was supported by increasing demand for stockpiling foods with a long shelf life amid the uncertainty caused by COVID-19-related restrictions as well as the need for cheaper ingredients for meal solutions. The packaging unit volumes of metal food cans used in shelf stable seafood continued to see strong growth in both 2020 and 2021. Tuna, pilchards and sardines...
