Abstracts

The various COVID-19 measures and restrictions introduced during the pandemic resulted in very strong growth in sales of processed meat and seafood in 2020. In addition to the requirement for consumers to stay indoors for much of the time during the official quarantine lockdown periods, many people were reluctant to spend time outside of the home due to fears of contagion. There were also foodservice closures, all of which added up to more home cooking, with Filipinos looking to processed meat a...
