Abstracts

Although it was not as marked as some categories in Thai packaged food, processed fruit and vegetables saw a small spike in demand in 2020, in turn boosting this category's packaging unit volumes. With consumers preparing more meals at home due to the various COVID-19 restrictions and measures, this boosted demand for meal ingredients, particularly ones that could be stored at home, as some stockpiling was seen among local consumers. While processed fruit and vegetables continued to see positive...
