Abstracts

After seeing dynamic growth in 2020 during the pandemic, total packaging volumes of processed meat and seafood turned to decline in 2021, and volumes continued to see a slight fall in 2022, although remained above the pre-pandemic level. Flexible plastic remained one of the leading pack types in 2022, and witnessed an increase in pack type share for processed meat and seafood packaging, for a few reasons. Flexible plastic packaging is cost-effective, and this cost advantage can be especially imp...
