Abstracts

There was a significant increase in demand for ready meals packaging during 2020. With consumers spending more time at home, they ate more meals there, with some – particularly those working from home – preferring meals that required very little preparation. There was particularly strong growth in demand for chilled and frozen products. The packaging unit volumes of other plastic trays and flexible plastic used in chilled and frozen pizza therefore rose in 2020, before then falling in 2021, as C...
