Abstracts

Refrigeration appliances is set to see a weak year in 2023, as several categories are expected to face retail volume decline, after a period of robust expansion during the pandemic, primarily fuelled by the heightened consumer demand for food storage solutions. While most product categories also experienced volume declines in 2022, sales of freezers experienced unexpected growth in this year, but sales are set to turn to decline in 2023. The overall contraction expected in refrigeration applianc...
