Abstracts

As in other markets, retail in Latvia continued to see the increased adoption of e-commerce at the end of the review period. While visible prior to the onset of Coronavirus (COVID-19), the pandemic accelerated the global shift towards online shopping, and Latvia was no exception to this development. Restrictions on consumer movement and shop opening hours saw many consumers move to e-commerce for the first time, while there was also an increase in average spend made by more habitual users.
