Abstracts

Having exhibited a double-digit decline in retail constant value sales (2021 prices) during 2020, retailing recovered only marginally in 2021. Non-grocery specialists were particularly hard hit by the pandemic during 2020, with their retail constant value sales plunging by a quarter, as they were regarded as 'non-essential' and forced to close for an extended period during the initial COVID-19 lockdown. Even after they were allowed to reopen, some local consumers remained reluctant to shop in pe...
