Abstracts

Pasta is subsidised by the government in Tunisia and pasta is a key staple in the Tunisia diet, with Tunisia having one of the highest global consumption rates per capita of pasta. However, in 2023, with local wheat production yields significantly lower due to drought, there is increased demand for imported wheat. The government controls imports, but with government finances under pressure, there are only limited imports and consequently there are shortages of pasta. As such, volume growth is ex...
