Abstracts

RTDs was another category to benefit greatly from the hot summer weather in 2017. While availability and product range remained limited at the end of the review period, those who were familiar with these drinks and their refreshing properties increased their consumption. The effect of the hot weather on the expansion of the category's consumer base remained weak due to a lack of promotion. As a result, the number of consumers of RTDs remained low at the end of the review period.
