Abstracts

The global market leader in home paint, Sherwin-Williams, grew in line with the global market over 2019-2021 as a whole, performing more successfully in 2020 due to investment in e-commerce and fulfilment ahead of the crisis, but then seeing lower growth in 2021, as the market caught up. The company's business model, with a strong direct-to-consumer element, positions it well for inflationary cycles and pushing costs into retail; however, there remains vulnerability, particularly outside the US.
