Abstracts

Singapore Airlines has had two consecutive years of soaring profits, thanks to the declining price of oil. Growth has also been fuelled by the success of subsidiaries like Silkair and Scoot. Singapore Airlines has increased its stake in Tigerair to 90%, and is merging Scoot and Tigerair under the Scoot brand as of 2017, creating a stronger LCC product. Scoot will fly on long haul routes, as SIA aims for more internationalisation in response to growing competition in the Asia Pacific region.
