Abstracts

Sleeps aids is expected to register healthy value growth, as it did in 2020. However, growth rates are not particularly higher than prior to the pandemic, though COVID-19 did drive some value sales, with more people suffering from anxiety about COVID-19 due to health concerns and also worries about jobs, which has led to more people suffering from sleeplessness. With the epidemiological situation even worse in 2021, these underlying factors still remain. However, the growth is not expected to be...
