Abstracts

In 2017, although cig-a-likes accounted for less than half of total value sales of vapour products, and was negatively affected by the declining single-use segment, it saw a strong double-digit increase. The vigorous growth of cig-a-likes was driven by two sources of consumer demand. The first was as a substitute for cigarettes. The public smoking ban has extended to more and more cities and regions around the country. This stricter policy forced some smokers to switch from cigarettes to vapour...
