Abstracts

As a broader base of potential younger buyers become interested in the expanding offer of open vapour systems and the wide assortment of e-liquids available, the main sales drivers for these products are affordability, convenience (discretion and portability) and performance (ranging from battery duration to vapour production). New lower-cost products provide consumers with affordable options, ranging between USD30.00 to under USD100.00. This trend is also gaining traction among experienced vapo...
