Abstracts

Vapour products remained the only type of product available in this area in 2017. Such products continue to see significant diversification as more new brands and product types become available, particularly via internet retailing, with sales via this channel being boosted by the ability to delivery rapidly within a matter of days or weeks, depending on the purchasing point. In 2017, the majority of vapour devices sales were for first-generation disposable “cig-a-likes”, as well as, to a lesser...
