Abstracts

The snacks market in Poland has been significantly affected by the elevated rate of inflation and low consumer and business confidence, which have negatively impacted sales growth. Declining real incomes, coupled with an already low saving rate, put pressure on private consumption, which stagnated in 2023. Inflation and recession have affected Poles' diet. Although certain food products were offered on preferential terms, including the removal of the standard 5% or 23% VAT on food, it was expect...
