Abstracts

Wine and particularly spirits have seen a period of consolidation. The briefing looks at what has taken place, particularly the recent Diageo wine and Brown-Forman's liqueurs divestments. It also looks at the strategic health of many of the world's biggest distillers and how M&A has benefited some but also how M&A is not necessary to grow. With limited opportunities to grow through M&A the latter will become particularly important for those companies that have remained too narrowly focused.
