Abstracts

Sports nutrition was negatively affected by the pandemic in 2020, with growth slowing against a backdrop of gym closures and lockdowns. However, even with Coronavirus (COVID-19) still present in the region, growth has picked up again in 2021, with people trying to work out and exercise as best they can, particularly given the increased focus on health due to the pandemic. With health and wellness remaining important for consumers, sales will continue growing over the forecast period.

Euromonitor International's Sports Nutrition in Asia Pacific global briefing examines the size, growth trends and potential opportunities in the Consumer Health market. The strategic analyses include assessing the impacts of changing regulations, research breakthroughs and public health concerns on both the market and leading companies.
