Abstracts

Sports nutrition is expected to register moderate current value growth in Guatemala in 2024. While sports nutrition products tend to be costly, unit prices have stabilised, due in large part to improvements made in the global supply chain, especially in proteins and other key inputs, and this is supporting value growth.. As most of these products are imported and rely on a few key inputs to meet their product specifications, the price of certain raw materials globally can have a strong impact on...
