Abstracts

Sugar continues to have a bad reputation, but globally its consumption is still growing. As developing countries are increasingly becoming dependent on high-sugar packaged foods and soft drinks, they will see significant growth in sugar purchasing. On the other hand, increasing awareness of sugar consumption and policies on sugar content are slowly but surely driving developed markets away from high sugar products and into the naturally savoury and low in sugar.

Euromonitor International's Sugar: The Fool Proof Target for Obesity or a Can of Worms? global briefing offers an insight into to the size and shape of the Nutrition market and highlights buzz topics, emerging geographies, categories and trends as well as pressing industry issues and white spaces. It identifies the leading companies and brands, offers strategic analysis of key factors influencing the market - be they new product developments, packaging innovations, economic/lifestyle influences, distribution or pricing issues. Forecasts illustrate how the market is set to change and criteria for success.

Product coverage: Alcoholic Drinks, Fresh Food, Packaged Food, Soft Drinks.

Data coverage: market sizes (historic and forecasts), company shares, brand shares and distribution data.
