Abstracts

Overall tissue and hygiene in Nigeria turned in a weak performance in 2023, with all categories posting a decline in volume terms as well as relatively slow current value growth. The depreciation of the local currency and fall in disposable incomes due to high inflation led to slowed growth. This harsh economic climate meant that even products such as those within nappies/diapers/pants, menstrual care and toilet paper saw deep dips in volume sales. Though often considered essential elsewhere, in...
