Abstracts

Overall, the picture was negative for tobacco in 2022, with constant value sales falling, and this was largely driven by a drop in volume sales of cigarettes. Twice yearly tax hikes on cigarettes, which are scheduled to continue until 2025, are making cigarettes more expensive. This was on top of high inflation in 2022, which was caused by an energy crisis stemming from the war in Ukraine. This has resulted in a further slight fall in smoking prevalence.
